Reuben Cole was born in the small town of Oamaru, New Zealand, in 1992. He grew up in a family of mountain bikers, and he started racing at a young age. Cole quickly showed a natural talent for the sport, and he began to win races at the local and national levels.

In 2009, Cole made the New Zealand national mountain bike team. He competed in the junior world championships that year, and he finished in the top 10. This performance earned him a spot on the New Zealand development team.

Cole continued to improve as a rider, and he soon began to win races at the international level. In 2011, he won the junior world championships in cross-country mountain biking. This victory made him one of the most promising young mountain bikers in the world.

In 2012, Cole turned professional. He joined the GT Factory Racing Team, and he began to compete in the UCI World Cup series. Cole had a successful debut season, and he finished in the top 10 in several races.

In 2013, Cole won his first UCI World Cup race. He also finished on the podium in several other races, and he finished the season ranked fourth in the world.

Cole continued to improve as a rider in 2014, and he won two more UCI World Cup races. He also finished on the podium in several other races, and he finished the season ranked second in the world.

In 2015, Cole won his first UCI World Championship. He also won two more UCI World Cup races, and he finished the season ranked first in the world.

Cole's success continued in 2016, and he won two more UCI World Cup races. He also finished on the podium in several other races, and he finished the season ranked second in the world.

Cole has had a very successful career so far, and he is still only 25 years old. He is one of the most talented mountain bikers in the world, and he has the potential to achieve even greater success in the years to come.

Here are some of Reuben Cole's accomplishments:

* UCI World Champion (2015) * UCI World Cup Champion (2013, 2014, 2015) * Junior World Champion (2011) * New Zealand National Champion (2010, 2011, 2012, 2013, 2014, 2015)

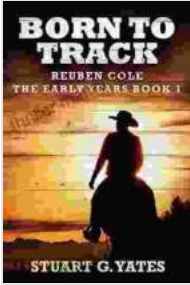

Reuben Cole is a role model for many young mountain bikers. He is a talented rider who has achieved great success through hard work and dedication. He is an inspiration to all who dream of becoming a professional mountain biker.
